WINTER DAYS RETURN

We residents of Massachusetts have to tolerate two DAYS annually, bleak though they be. One is Ground Hog Day coming up shortly and the other with us now is Furcolo Tax Proposal Day.

The Federal Government is considering the abolition of an unjust tax. The telephone tax was a World War II measure which should rightly have been done away with at the close of same. Our tax happy Governor is pouncing on this one in advance as a great new State tax. The lesson is clear.

Any loose tax plan will find a home in Massachusetts.

The other old favorite, the sales tax, has been dusted off and rebaited.

On the bright side - taxes last for all time but Governors can't. It only seems forever.

Given the choice, we will take Ground Hog Day.

COVER PICTURE

This is a watercolor painting by Donald Jason. The fresh snow will give the youngsters a chance to try those Christmas Sleds and the fresh snow is beautiful on the clear morning after the storm.

WOMAN'S CLUB TO MEET

VISIT AT RICHARDS MOTORS

Your Dependable Pontiac & Vauxhall Dealer

Believe me, the '60 Pontiac ride leaves little to be desired. It's ultra soft . . . proves that you can have your cake and eat it, too, as the suspension's tremendous ability to blot out small wiggles and bumps of surface roughness means that on really big bumps and rail crossings you won't pitch wildly.

For 1960, Pontiac styling manages to combine the sleek and the massive, two qualities rarely brought together successfully in the design of one motor car. A look at Pontiac's impressively simple new grille gives little clue to the car's price bracket. Those crisp horizontal lines of the grille bars would not be out of place on a car costing $5000.

CBS TELEVISION REPORT ON "THE MISSILE LAG"

In a neat one hour package CBS summarized the United States' faltering steps into the missile age in a program presented Wednesday, January 6, 1960. This was an excellent program because it put the spotlight on the reasons that the Russians lead us going away by a good two years. It is also a good idea to bring into the open the fact that the faults which put us so far behind are not only still there but are being compounded day by day.

In a nutshell the program presented the race as a struggle between two bureaucracies. We, in the words of the space leaders, have no one at the top to make clear cut decisions about our program, so we branch off in all directions with duplication of research, development and production. The competition among the services has led not to better missiles but to fantastic waste of effort and money. Yet, at the same time, we are spending more on the storing of surplus wheat than we are spending on our missile program. Because the pay for scientists in government is ridiculous when compared to industry, brilliant men are available to government only at great personal sacrifice. If they do go to work for the government at this sacrifice they are subject to political attack, hamstringing regulation by bureaucrats, and are under orders from military officers who, in many cases, have little or no grasp of the job. These really top scientists soon return to jobs with private industry where they are allowed to do their work, get paid according to their ability and value to the company and are free from constant attack and testifying before Congressional committees. In the words of Admiral Rickover, the government is left with the mediocre scientists who are willing to put up with the frustrations of government work .

The Russians on the other hand have a totalitarian government in which the scientist is so closely tied to the military. Apparently the savage infighting among rival services that our program is subject to is not the case in Russia. Someone at the top in Russia is making decisions. The goal is not beat the army, beat the navy, beat the air force but beat the United States. They are all on the same track.

There is no doubt that we could have beaten the Russian sputnik into space. The army Redstone missile had been proven capable of the job before the decision was made to start the Vanguard project which was assigned to the navy, a service with no missile experience. After Sputnik with its tremendous propaganda impact on the world, after the series of spectacular Vanguard failures which the world witnessed, only then was the Redstone allowed to put the first 18-pound American satellite into orbit. Later the Vanguard put a 3-pound midget into orbit. The cost- 5½ million dollars for the already proven Redstone versus $111,000,000 for the Vanguard program which was abandoned after little success.

The Soviets have beaten us into orbit around the sun. They are the first to hit the moon. They are the first to orbit the moon and photograph the hidden side. These are achievements which will be remembered always. There are very few more firsts left such as the first manned satellite and the first manned trip into space to another planet. We have been beaten into space because the space program is secondary in our government, and because we were ahead technically in the development of a more compact nuclear bomb. We have the Strategic Air Command and a world wide network of bases. The Russians have not. Our scientists made a breakthrough in the development of the compact nuclear bomb which meant that the intercontinental missile which originally was planned for 600,000 lbs thrust could deliver the same punch if the thrust was cut in half. In the military view this was desirable and was done. As far as the exploration of space is concerned, however, we are asking too much of a rocket too small. The calculated risk is too great and we fail. The Russians with twice the power have had conspicuous success and a two-year lead, so seem certain to enjoy more success in the future.

It seems that the wasteful duplication which led to the research, development and production of two almost identical intermediate range ballistic missiles serves no purpose but to waste our scientific talent and money. If the best of these missiles had been proven and mass production of the best had been started, wouldn't we have a better missile and a simpler supply and training job? Shouldn't someone make this decision in the future? Is the conquest of space important enough to go all out to achieve? If so, shouldn't there be someone to head the program, and channel our combined energy and scientific talent on the job? The generals in charge of the space programs in both the air force and the army are agreed that leadership in this space program is needed. They are also convinced that if this program becomes a political football that progress will be impaired even further. It was brought out that the air force's General Shriver spent some 220 days out of the 365 of the last year in testimony before Congressional committees. This is the kind of frustration and waste that drives the most patriotic scientist back to private industry where he can make four times the money and be allowed to go to work.

The American people can change the direction of our space program, if they will make themselves heard. The maze of Washington bureaucracy is capable of writing memos to each other in globbyglook which no one, not even they, can understand. They will, however, comprehend an aroused public.

We hope you saw this CBS program. If not, we hope you will look for "The Missile Lag" if it is repeated. Failing that, we hope that this little summary will be useful in making you as concerned as we are. It is high time we became a contender in space or quit entirely and let the Soviets blaze the way. Apparently they think that it's important to dominate in space. Win they will ence to three satellite countries: Poland, Czechoslovakia and the newly opened Bulgaria; as well as nine of the fifteen Republics within the Soviet Union; exotic Samarkand, Alma Ata, Tashkent; Moscow in the season of the American Fair highlighted by Vice President Nixon's visit, the Black Sea ports of Odessa and Yalta, the resorts of Cochi and Sukhumi, the historic cities of Tiflis, Rostov, Kharkov, Stalingrad, Kiev and Leningrad. As usual he concentrates on the life of the peoples he finds, catching as well the atmosphere and "feel" of the fabled cities and landscapes. You surely won't want to miss this viewing in Marion.

It is great to have friends when one is young, but indeed it is still more so when you are getting old. When we are young, friends are, like everything else, a matter of course. In the old days we know what it means to have them.

unless the U. S. public demands something better than an intramural military spending contest and backbiting society.

In a postscript with a direct connection to the above, Senator Stuart Symington on Meet the Press Sunday night advocated spending the expected surplus on missiles. This surplus President Eisenhower plans to use to reduce the national debt, the enormous mortgage that we pass on to our children. In view of the alarming decrease in the value of the dollar, the President's plan seems the wise one. If our National government plans never to pay off the national debt, but rather to go on increasing it year by year, we will not only be behind in missiles but we will be broke. The interest that is not being paid every year on the national debt would buy an awful pile of missiles. Militarily speaking, we trust we have enough missiles now to defend ourselves. If the value of the dollar continues to decline, we will have nothing to defend.

GUILD MEMBERS SEE FILMS OF MEDICAL MISSIONARY

"Mongana", the story of Dr. John E. Ross of California, a medical missionary in the Belgian Congo, was shown in a motion film in color at the meeting last Tuesday afternoon of the Women's Community Guild of the Mattapoisett Congregational Church in the parish hall. The film was shown by the Rev. Frederic E. Reynard.

Mrs. E. Everett Eldridge, Jr. led the worship service. Mrs. Ross Hopkins presided at the business meeting when it was voted to donate $25. towards traveling expenses of the Rev. Frederico R. Medina of Onset. He will spend two weeks in Puerto Rico in connection with his work as minister to migrants in Southeastern Massachusetts.

The dancing school classes for junior high school age started last week and will start on January 15th for beginners and advanced pupils. Mrs. Arthur Musschoot is chairman of this project. Kay Hanley Theg of Fairhaven is the instructor.

Mrs. Kenneth Wiggin requested flowers for the altar on Sundays during the Winter months. Reports on the Adventures in Reading program for the past year should be returned to Miss Dorothy Fox, chairman, before February 1st.

The Social Action committee will meet with the chairman, Mrs. Frederic E. Reynard, when the problems of Puerto Ricans in the United States will be discussed.

An invitation was received for members to attend the interfaith meeting of the Women's Alliance of the Unitarian Church of New Bedford held this past Tuesday.

Mrs. George C. Bradley, Jr. and Mrs. Kenneth Wiggin poured at the tea table which had a snow village as its centerpiece. Mrs. Kenneth Hirons, hostess, was assisted by Mrs. John F. Denham, Jr., Mrs. Arthur Marcoux, Mrs. Norman McKay and Mrs. Charles W. Smith.

Someone asked Mr. Einstein one day what kind of weapons would be used in the third world war. "Well", he answered, "I don't know. I don't know what they are developing, because things are progressing so rapidly, but I can tell you what they'll use in the fourth world war," he said. "They'll use rocks." -- J. William Fulbright, United States senator from Arkansas.
